THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY
FOR 1877.
(With which is incorporated "THE CHINA DIRECTORY.")

This Comprehensive Work, now in the FIFTEENTH YEAR of its existence, has been compiled from the BEST and MOST RELIABLE SOURCES, and no pains have been spared to render it COMPLETE in EVERY RESPECT.

It contains—
THE DIRECTORY FOR HONGKONG.
THE DIRECTORY FOR CANTON.
THE DIRECTORY FOR SHANGHAI.
THE DIRECTORY FOR HANKOW.
THE DIRECTORY FOR TIENTSIN.
THE DIRECTORY FOR NEWCHOWANG.
THE DIRECTORY FOR PEKING.
THE DIRECTORY FOR JAPAN.
THE DIRECTORY FOR PHILIPPINES.
THE DIRECTORY FOR SAIGON.
THE DIRECTORY FOR HAIPHONG.
THE DIRECTORY FOR HANOI.
THE DIRECTORY FOR SINGAPORE.
THE DIRECTORY FOR BANGKOK.

With brief descriptions of Hongkong and the Twenty Ports of China, Japan, and the Philippines.

It also includes a mass of useful information in addition to that usually found in works of the kind.

The larger Directory contains the different Treaties and Conventions made by China and Japan with foreign countries, together with various Acts, Ordinances, and Regulations relating to Commerce and Shipping.

It is further embellished with a Chromo-lithograph of a PLAN OF VICTORIA, HONGKONG; THE FOREIGN SETTLEMENTS OF SHANGHAI; Chromo-lithograph Plate of the NEW CODE OF SIGNALS in use at the PEAK; Also of the various HOUSE FLAGS (Designed expressly for the Work); and MAPS OF HONGKONG, JAPAN, &c.

The Chronicle and Directory is the only publication of its kind for China and Japan, and it will be found invaluable in all Public, Mercantile, and General Offices.

It is published in two forms—Complete at 5s.; or with the Lists of Residents, Port Directors, Maps, &c., at 8s.

Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily Press Office, where it is published, or to the following Agents—

The Daily Press
HONGKONG, JULY 21st, 1877.

This Reuter's telegram dated the 17th inst., which will be found in another column, contains an announcement of great importance. It states that not only have the Russians inflicted a severe defeat upon the Turks at Nicopolis, but also that the vanguard of the Russian army has crossed the Balkans. It does not state by which pass this has been accomplished, but that it is of great moment so long as they have succeeded in surmounting this obstacle to their southern march. This advance of the Russians has been unexpectedly rapid and shows plainly that the Turks are wholly incapable of arresting the progress of the invading army in Bulgaria. The next advance of the Russians will be for Adrianople and if that is reached without any decisive check we shall probably then hear of the Turkish quest for peace. A large and influential party in Constantinople favours peace, and their ranks are being strengthened daily. The peace party recognise the fact that the recent atrocities in Bulgaria have alienated other nations, and that Turkey cannot hope for active aid from any power. Germany and Great Britain are ready to act as mediators, and the Oza professes to be willing to make terms after crossing the Balkans. The majority of the Turkish Council are at present opposed to peace, and are zealous for war. When, however, they find Adrianople in the hands of the Russians, and Constantinople threatened, they may, perhaps, change their tune. Even their successes in Asia, though all maintained, will not counterbalance the loss of Adrianople, which is now distinctly threatened. It will be a fortunate thing for Europe if the war is brought to a termination before any more complications arise. The longer it lasts the greater is the danger of the area of conflict being enlarged, and other nationalities being drawn into it. The British Government firmly intends, if possible, to keep its fingers out of the pie. The Turks will lose heart if they meet with a succession of reverses, and they cannot fail to know that, however courageously their troops may fight, they must eventually be overpowered. Unless, therefore, Russia fails to observe the promises she has made to Great Britain to respect her interests in the Suez Canal, Persian Gulf, and India, there is a strong probability that the war will be brought to a speedy conclusion without any other Power being involved in it.

The commercial prospects of Japan for the current year do not appear very hopeful. A Yokohama contemporary points out that neither silk nor tea—the two leading exports—are likely to command high rates, while there is reason to fear the rice crop will be limited, owing to the drought recently experienced. If these prognostications are fulfilled, it must necessarily follow that the Japanese people will not be able to spend so much on luxuries imported from foreign countries. Meantime the national treasury is being exhausted by the disastrous civil war, now raging in the south. Last year was an exceptionally prosperous one for Japan, and hence the cost of the war has not hitherto been felt so much as it would otherwise have done; but it is to be feared it will press hardly upon the people if continued through this year.

At present there seems to be no immediate hope of the insurrection being suppressed, although the Imperialists have lately gained some advantages over the rebels. It is a great pity that some arrangement cannot be made to between the rebel chiefs and the Meiji Government. The Rishisha of Tosa, a sort of political society, has presented a memorial to the Meiji Government, in which the past mistakes of the Government are frankly stated, and existing evils are reprimanded in plain but moderate language. In the course of this appeal the memorialists state: "Laws have been enforced, taxes imposed, the collection of the land-tax reformed, was declared against foreign countries, portions of the empire exchanged; solely at the caprice of several officials, without allowing public opinion to have a voice in the matter. The sacred oath taken by the Emperor on his accession to the throne has been altogether set aside." But the great burden of the memorial is its strong plea for constitutional instead of despotic government. "In order to advance the public welfare," it says, "public opinion must be allowed expression, and such liberty will be the foundation of our prosperity. Be its ministers ever so wise, it is natural to a Government to become despotic. With a country in such a condition as ours, how much more likely is such a state of things to come about." The memorial goes on to point out the mistakes into which the Government has been led, the reforms needed, and winds up with the expression of hope that the people will in future be allowed a voice in the administration. The document is a long and able production, well worthy the careful attention of the rulers of Japan. They may not think fit to concede all that is demanded, and will be sure to quarrel with many of the criticisms on their past policy; but they cannot fail to learn something from it of the hopes and aspirations of young Japan. They may still, after grave consideration, remain of the opinion that Japan is not ripe for representative institutions, but at the same time they may find it politic to make some concessions to the people by which the prevailing discontent can be appeased.

In annual offerings. One offering about was opened during the Russo-Turkish war in 1855. Several times were withdrawn, but it was again closed. A second offering was opened in 1858, and the same was done, but the third had not been opened since 1855. It is conjectured that the accumulation of money in the last named offering could not be less than 250,000,000 francs, and it is fully believed that the total amount of treasure of Islam will exceed 600,000,000 francs, and even a much higher sum.

The Guardian is informed from Cambridge that Mr. J. Cox, Fellow of Trinity College, has been selected to the vacant Warden'ship of Cambridge College. Mr. Cox is a Nonconformist. "He is said to be a polished gentleman, and a very tall thin man, with a 'had a cold in his head' originating in wet feet. A lady looked at him slowly from head to foot, and back again, as if measuring the distance the cold had to travel, and then she said, 'I wish you must have got your feet wet some time last year.'"

In this monthly report, dated London, the 18th June, 1877, the advance in the Scotch Pig market is only 10s. per cwt. The market for fatstock remains depressed, the North Country trade having been further adversely affected by the look-out in the Clyde, which has checked the demand for ship plates. The oilers in the employ of two of the largest companies in South Wales have accepted a reduction of 10 per cent. in wages, and in the Wolverhampton district they have also consented to a reduction of 3d. per day.
